ORDER:-

The Department of Agriculture and Co-operation is undertaking critical initiatives to address challenges at various levels of food and agri value chain to increase the farmer income.

2. At present there are following key challenges identified at production, marketing and distribution sides,

a. Production/Farm side (Department of Agriculture) - The Department of Agriculture, has various organizations/departments serving overlapping objectives which is hampering the efficiency and effectiveness of developmental programs.

b. Marketing side (Agricultural Marketing Department)- Price discovery for farm commodities is based on manual assessment of quality, which leaves the farmer vulnerable to malpractices in price fixation. Additionally the farmer payment are mostly made in cash and there is a lack of transparency in terms of actual payments made to farmers.

c. Distribution side (Department of Civil Supplies / Andhra Pradesh State Civil Supplies Corporation) - The rural/low income population has limited reach to good quality and affordable daily consumption goods. Moreover, rural markets are dominated by low grade spurious commodities / FMCG goods.

3. Government, in view of the above, is taking up integrated initiatives to holistically address the challenges from farm to fork, which include following key programs,

a. The Department of Agriculture is undertaking realignment of various functional teams, focusing upon objective of increasing the ROI for farmers from Agriculture activities.

b. The Agricultural Marketing Department envisages to implement mandi modernization initiatives including, infrastructure development, IT integration, process realignment and capacity building.

c. The Department of Civil Supplies / Andhra Pradesh State Civil Supplies Corporation is rolling out various initiatives, enabling supply chain optimization & organization realignment.
4. To implement and monitor the above interventions at various department with an integrated approach and continuous co-ordination, the department wants to establish a dedicated Project Management Unit with professionally qualified and experienced resources.

5. Appointing a professional agency to operate the Project Management Unit will bring in transparency and accountability in the system with third party monitoring along with professional approach utilizing latest interventions contributing knowledge, skills and technology expertise.

The temporary resources hired for specific requirement have limited financial commitment and brings in task based and result oriented approach in the system, with an independent and fresh perspective.
